

Sanderstead Library Building, Farm Fields, South Croydon,
CR2 0HL

Indicative net internal area 210 sq m (2,260 sq ft)

DESCRIPTION

Built in 1936, this public library building is located on a corner site in a residential area. It comprises a two-storey building with extensive garden areas to three sides and a large beech tree (subject to a Tree Preservation Order). The building is in a reasonable state of repair but would benefit from some updating.

The permitted use of the building is Class F.1 – Learning and non-residential institutions. However, we are interested in hearing from groups that wish to utilise the building as a local community centre hosting a wide range of activities. This type of use falls within Class F.2 (Local community (b)) and it is likely that planning permission for a change of use would be required.

In either case, the tenant will be asked to maintain a 'library outreach' element that could, for example, involve hosting a community book collection.

There are currently a number of non-library activities that take place in this library. The Knit and Craft Group meets weekly, and a Community Reading Group meets monthly. Where these groups want to remain in the building, we will expect the partner to do their best to enable the continuation of these Activities.
